Belt It Out!

Come "Belt It Out" at the Cascade Locks Park Association's (CLPA) fourth annual Hot Jazz on Howard Street fund-raiser, as we celebrate our incredible jazz heritage on Howard Street. We have added a different dimension to the upcoming event this August with some new and exciting treats for your listening pleasure. The event will be held August 18, 2007, at the Interbelt Night Club, 70 North Howard Street.

As you arrive for an evening of hot jazz, the music and vocals of Tim Mays will welcome you. Tim is an accomplished composer, arranger, and blues and jazz performer, who has shared his talents with the Akron Community and beyond. He has served as the resident musician at Stewart

Dan Wilson and Friends will perform.

Afro-centric Primary School, composed commercials for McDonald's, WZIP, and Coca-Cola, and entertained for Gospel Meets Symphony patron receptions. Tim has received commendations from city, county and state governments for his invaluable service to our community.

Ms. Cherie McClain will be our emcee. Cherie is most recognized as an announcer for the Ohio Lottery televised drawings, co-host of morning radio in both the Akron and Cleveland markets and as the daughter-in-law of the late Dr. Shirla R. McClain.

Our entertainment will include jazz vocalist Barbara Barrett, who has performed throughout the Cleveland area jazz clubs. Barbara will perform with The Legends, featuring jazz greats Jimmy Noel and Waymon "Punchy" Atkinson, both of whom played the Howard Street jazz circuit in its heyday.

By popular demand we are excited to welcome back Dan Wilson and Friends, who were introduced in our 2006 Hot Jazz on Howard Street event, "The Beat Goes On." No one could have been more proud than his parents, Dr. Dan Wilson Sr. and The Honorable Judge Carla Moore.

Park Updates

Cascade Mills Site

Our staff and volunteers, working alongside our partners, have nearly completed the plans for the Cascade Mill Site. We will be unveiling final plans at the CLPA Membership Gathering on Tuesday, June 12th. Be sure to save the date. Invitations will be sent to all members.

The Mill site will be a neighborhood gathering place. In addition, visitors will learn about the Mill's history and one of Akron's most well known figures: Ferdinand Schumacher. The site's focal point is a sculpture, designed by artist Chuck Ayers with help from Don Harvey. Pictured here, the piece will interpret the historic wheel that powered the mill and will conform to the 35-foot diameter size of the original wheel. An image of the former mill within the piece will let the visitor imagine its presence at the site.

Beech Street Power Plant

The Beech Street Power Plant site will become another destination within the Cascade Locks Park. We sit at a major interchange within the Ohio & Erie National Heritage Canalway. We are at the mid-point and also host the three transportation arteries of the Canalway: the Towpath Trail, the Canalway Byway (Howard Street) and the Cuyahoga Valley Scenic Railroad. The Beech Street Project is a prime example of how these arteries come together.

Easily accessible from the Innerbelt and from the Canalway Byway, this will be an arrival point for many visitors. By 2008, visitors will be able to park at a new trailhead and

From the President

Spring has arrived! Once again we will be opening the doors of the Mustill Store for the 2007 season. Since the new leg of the Towpath opened in June of 2006, we have experienced huge increases in visitation. I believe that this year has the potential of easily surpassing those numbers. Our Store Volunteers will need as much help as we can give them. Please consider becoming one of our finest assets, a Store Volunteer.

Phil January

The Cascade Valley continues to develop and change around us. Our major focus, the Schumacher Mill Site, is nearing the end of its design phase. It is truly a beautiful, masterful and harmonious plan for this historic Heritage Site. It is vitally important for us to preserve this part of Akron's Industrial heritage. I would like to thank the Northern Ohio Golf Charities for their recent contribution in support of the Mill Site Construction. I was honored and humbled to be part of their event at which they announced their contributions.

Please join us, whenever and however you can, here at the Mustill Store.

Northside Lofts Update

Northside Lofts will begin construction on the second high rise building of its complex in April '07. Brownstone style townhomes are scheduled for construction along Howard Street this summer as well.

Northside Loft developer Paul Testa has reported that sales are going well and that he is very optimistic about a local luminary becoming a new tenant by September of this year.

Chrissie Hynde, Rock and Roll Hall of Famer, has met with Testa about her vision for a restaurant in the complex. "We love what she wants to do," Testa said. "She loves it and we love her ideas."

The proposed restaurant will have a vegetarian cuisine and will use organic foods as much as possible. It will be open for breakfast, lunch and supper. Current plans include a patio that will overlook a waterfall and the Little Cuyahoga Valley.

Another restaurant, Eclectic, has leased 5,000 square feet on the west end of the lofts and will serve a tapas cuisine. Testa has indicated that there is room for one more restaurant in the building.

Winter Retreat Reshapes CLPA Committee Efforts

Effective organizations continually seek opportunities for improvement. To unleash the talents and energies of CLPA's growing volunteer cadre, the CLPA Board initiated a review of Board, staff and committee roles and responsibilities. Initially, former Board member, Ellen Otto and current Board member, Rosemary Reymann, worked with Bridget Garvin to take a "snapshot" of the current organizational structure and operations.

"One significant finding," said Rosemary Reymann, "was that an organizational culture had developed requiring our Executive Director's involvement in nearly every committee meeting." To better meet the needs of CLPA's ambitious future plans, committees must function more autonomously and proactively.

Discussions with Committee Chairs identified strengths and weaknesses within each committee. By identifying areas requiring more expertise, the Nominating Committee has a new focus for recruiting new Board members.

Winter Retreat

On January 27, a Winter Retreat at Mingo Pavilion in Sand Run Park launched the new organizational structure and expectations for CLPA staff, Board and Committees. Virginia Wojno-Forney, CLPA's founder, provided a brief historical perspective and Bridget Garvin discussed current activities and our vision for the future.

Ellen Otto explained the six-month assessment process and resulting recommendations. Rosemary Reymann outlined responsibilities of each Committee and unveiled a new monthly committee reporting form. Organizational Development Consultant, Tony Bishop, (husband of CLPA board member, Dr. Roberta Chapman) provided an activity management form to coordinate committee planning.

The morning concluded with Committee breakout sessions to identify objectives, specific responsibilities and opportunities to advance the CLPA's goals.

According to Ellen Otto, "We are already seeing tremendous improvement as committees are growing more enfranchised. I think this re-framing has energized the organization and greatly enhances our ability to capitalize on the diverse talents of our volunteers to steer CLPA toward an exciting future."

SPOTLIGHT ON ... Chuck Ayers

Long-time Akron residents need no introduction to Chuck Ayers. For many years, he came into their homes regularly as editorial cartoonist for the Akron Beacon Journal. Then, in the late 1980s, he joined with fellow Kent State University grad, Tom Batiuk, working on the syndicated comic strip Funky Winkerbean. Chuck shares the by-line on its spin-off, Crankshaft which he draws.

Beacon Journal readers might also recognize the name from the “Walking around Akron” columns Chuck wrote with Russ Musarra. Akron University Press is publishing them as a collection.

The Akron native began art studies at Hower Vocational High School, a magnet school for artistically talented at the time. He continued art studies at The University of Akron then transferred to Kent State University as a Graphic Design Major. He’s applied this graphic design talent to ad agency assignments and as a Beacon Journal Staff Artist.

Interest in Cascade Locks Park Association

His initial association with Cascade Locks Park Association goes back to one of the walking Akron stories. “Virginia Wojno-Forney took us there,” Chuck recalls. “At the time, the store was in a derelict condition and we had to literally hack our way through underbrush to traverse the route of the canal.”

A few years ago, Chuck’s association became more formal when he was invited to serve on the Cascade Locks Park Association Planning Committee, focused on expanding the Park’s footprint to include the Cascade Mills area. This spurred Chuck to create a scale model of the area. “I made it largely for myself,” Chuck explains. “Even after walking the area and looking at topographical maps, I had trouble visualizing where the Mill Pond and other areas once were.”

Chuck’s visualization and artistic skills have been invaluable to the Planning Committee’s efforts to develop the Mill Site as an interactive, educational visitor destination right off the Ohio & Erie Canal Towpath Trail. He has drawn renderings of what the area will look like following its development. They include his concept for a full size representation of the Schumacher Mill’s gigantic overshot waterwheel flanked by representations of the mill itself.

“I’ve found working on the Planning Committee the most amazing civic group experience I’ve ever had,” he says. “Everyone is so knowledgeable. Whenever a question comes up that is a little out of the ordinary—someone on the committee has just the expertise we need.”

Chuck and his wife, Lisa, live in the Highland Square neighborhood. His daughter, Amy, attends Akron University and son, Wes, goes to Miller South.

Chuck’s excited to see his artistic renderings become reality. Then the huge Schumacher Mill wheel, half above ground, will dominate the landscape once more, a vivid tribute to Akron’s early industrial era.

Our Holiday Volunteer Party

While the weather provided an enchanting backdrop for our holiday party, sadly, it did keep quite a few volunteers at home. But those who made it to the Mustill Store had a great time! Kerosene lanterns led the party goers along the snowy path to find the store windows festooned with holiday wreaths and lighted tree. Inside, our 50 plus guests enjoyed the food, drinks and conversation.

This year, three local businesses generously offered donations for our raffle; Angel Falls Coffee contributed a large basket filled with their gourmet coffees, teas and chocolates, Big City Chop House donated a $50 gift certificate for dinner, and Whirlwind Cleaning Services offered an hour of professional house cleaning.

Thanks to Cathy Sullivan, Bob Jenkins, Lynne Van Nostran, Denny Reiser and Rosemary Reymann of the Education Committee – they put a lot of time and effort into making the party a success every year.

From The Executive Director

Cascade Locks Park Association has experienced a great period of growth over the past several years. With new volunteers continually entering the scene, an addition of over 300 members in the past five years, the completion of the Towpath Trail through the Park, progress on the plans for our Cascade Mill Site, and educational programs offered to groups and students in the Mustill Store and in the Park...we have kept up the pace to achieve our mission. I strongly believe we are at a point where the organization needs to be taken to the next level. Whenever an organization faces this point, it must reassess itself and make the appropriate adjustments and changes to move forward.

Bridget Garvin

Over the past several months, we have been doing just that. We have defined what it is we need to be focused on and what sort of work needs to be done to achieve our goals. We then reshaped and redefined our committees to do this work. At the end of January, we brought the committees together and kicked off the new structure and a new era. I am so excited about what is coming next for the organization and I am thrilled at the enthusiasm and activity of our committees. With the talent that we have enlisted, I have no doubt that CLPA will continue to grow and jump to the next level.

I would like to thank Ellen Otto (former CLPA Board member) and Rosemary Reymann (current CLPA Board member) for spearheading this process with passion, hard work and dedication.
